I. OVERVIEW OF GRANT FUNDING

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is the largest grant-making agency in the Federal government. In Fiscal Year 2002, HHS awarded $224 billion in Federal grants. Of those funds, approximately 85% were for mandatory grant programs, such as Medicaid. The remaining $36 billion funded discretionary grants (grants in which the Department selected the grantees). These discretionary grant awards fund health and social science research and social and health services throughout the country.

HHS is highly decentralized. Its twelve (12) operating divisions administer over 300 grant programs. Nine (9) operating divisions comprise the U.S. Public Health Service. Each operating division has grants and program offices, which administer grant programs. These offices are the best sources of information on HHS grants. Program offices are responsible for the technical and/or scientific aspects of grant programs. Grants offices are responsible for issuing grant awards and overseeing the business and financial management of grant awards.

Information contacts are usually included in the grant program announcements published in the Federal Register, as well as in the grant program information contained in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance (CFDA). In some cases, contacts in both program and grants offices are provided in both publications. Program offices are the best source of information about program initiatives and priorities, eligibility criteria, application format and submission, and the status of award notifications. Grants offices are the best source of information on financial and business management requirements that grantees must follow.

The Grants Management Offices listed on the following pages can provide information about their respective grant programs or refer you to the appropriate grant and program offices within their agency. However, we urge that you identify specific programs of interest using the CFDA whenever possible so that you can directly contact the appropriate program or grants office.

II. SUMMARY OF THE GRANTS PROCESS

APPLICATION PROCESS

Once you identify a program that you wish to seek funding from, you will need to request and complete an application package for submission to the appropriate awarding agency. Many awarding agencies will include application materials in the Federal Register announcement. Whenever possible, agencies attempt to allot 60 days from the date a program announcement is published in the Federal Register to the date the application is due in the agency.

Most HHS agencies use a standard application form which requests basic identifying information about the grantee, such as estimated project costs, funding sources for the project, and a budget. Typically, a narrative description of the proposed project is required as a component of the application. The application form or package also contains a set of assurances outlining various Departmental requirements and Federal laws which a grantee must agree to and comply with in order to receive Federal funding. Questions pertaining to these requirements should be directed to the agency administering the grant program.

Upon receipt of all applications, the awarding agency will initiate a competitive review of the submitted applications. The review process varies among agencies, but all applications are evaluated by a minimum of three (3) reviewers. Necessary steps are taken to ensure that applications are provided an independent and objective review by qualified evaluators.

GRANT AWARD PROCESS

Generally, it takes three to four months after submitting an application for an applicant to learn whether the application is approved for funding. The awarding agency typically notifies every applicant in writing as to whether the application is approved for funding or not.

Should your application be tentatively approved for funding, you may receive calls from either the responsible program office and/or grants office to review the projected expenditures in your application in more detail. This is to ensure that costs are allowable and appropriate for accomplishing the grant purposes.

A successful applicant receives a grant award package that contains the official notification of the grant award, procedures for requesting grant funds, information and forms regarding the grantee's reporting responsibilities. Also, it is important to note any special terms or conditions and all applicable Departmental regulations referenced within the grant award.

CLOSE-OUT PROCESS

Grantees must incur their costs within the allowed project or budget periods. The grantee has 90 days following the final budget period to liquidate (make payment on) all their unpaid obligations and submit their required final reports. Reporting requirements may vary from program to program, however, at a minimum a programmatic and a financial report must be submitted to the designated grants office.

III. PRINCIPAL GRANTING AGENCIES

Administration on Aging (AoA)

AoA provides funding to support a nationwide aging network and provide services to the elderly. AoA supports over 240 million meals for the elderly each year, including home-delivered “meals on wheels,” helps provide transportation and at-home services, supports ombudsman services for the elderly and provides policy leadership on aging issues.

IV. GRANT INFORMATION SOURCES

Grants.gov

Grants.gov will simplify the grants management process, and create a centralized, online process to find and apply for over 900 grant programs from the 26 Federal grant-making agencies. Grants.gov streamlines the process of awarding over $360 billion annually to state and local governments, academia, not-for-profits and other organizations. Please visit www.grants.gov for more information.

Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance (CFDA)

The Catalog, compiled and maintained by the General Services Administration (GSA), profiles all Federal grant programs and lists a specific contact for obtaining additional information and application forms. It also includes a helpful section on writing grant applications.

The CFDA is available in the following formats:

- Internet: A searchable version is available through the GSA web site at www.cfda.gov
- Published Text: A published text of the Catalog is available in the reference section of most major libraries. It is also available for purchase through the U.S. Government Printing Office (phone: 202-512-1800).
- CD-ROM and Diskettes: The CD-ROM and diskette versions are available through an annual subscription (complete editions in June and December) from GSA (phone: 202-708-5126).

Federal Register

The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) compiles the Federal Register. It provides public access to the official text of Federal laws, Presidential documents, administrative regulations and notices, and descriptions of Federal organizations, programs and activities. Most Federal grant programs announce funding opportunities (program announcements) through this daily publication.

The Federal Register is available in the following formats:

- Internet: A searchable version is available at www.access.gpo.gov/nara
- Published Text: A published text of the Federal Register is available in the reference section of most major libraries. It is also available for purchase through the U.S. Government Printing Office (phone: 202-512-1800).

National Institutes of Health Guide to Grants and Contracts

This is the official publication of NIH policies, procedures and availability of funds for biomedical and behavioral research and research training. The Guide is published weekly on the Internet at www.nih.gov/grants/guide. A subscription service for weekly content notification via email is available.

HRSA Preview

This annual publication of the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) provides information on current funding opportunities available for primary health care, health professions, maternal and child health, and HIV/AIDS.

The HRSA Preview is available in the following formats:

- Internet: Text only, fully formatted and Spanish versions are available through the HRSA web site at www.hrsa.gov.
- Published Text: To be placed on the mailing list, call 1-877-HRSA-123.

SAMHSA Snapshot

This annual publication of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration provides information on current funding opportunities available for substance abuse prevention, addiction treatment, and mental health services.

The SAMHSA Snapshot is available in the following formats:

- Internet: Available through the SAMHSA web site at www.samhsa.gov
- Published Text: Send an email request to snapshot@samhsa.gov or if you do not have internet access call 301-443-4266.

GrantsNet

GrantsNet is the HHS web site for grant information. It is administered by the Office of Grants Management in the Office of the Secretary. It provides useful information on administering grant awards, such as the Office of Management and Budget Circulars and the Code of Federal Regulations, including HHS regulations, and other pertinent policy information. GrantsNet also provides links to the CFDA, Federal Register, NIH Guide to Grants and Contracts, HRSA Preview and all the HHS operating divisions. The GrantsNet web site is located at www.hhs.gov/grantsnet.

HHS Grants and Program Offices

As referenced earlier, HHS grants and program offices which administer grant programs are the best sources for information on specific HHS grant programs.
